Blood Borne Pathogens

About this Training

This session discusses how you might be exposed to blood borne pathogens and infectious diseases, how you can protect yourself from exposure, and how to clean up bodily fluids. Even if your job does not normally expose you to bodily fluids, this session is helpful to raise your awareness of blood borne pathogens, to recognize that you should not come into contact with them, and to understand that it is important to report a spill of blood or bodily fluids so they can be cleaned up safely.
